Paris Reaches Gotham With Liquor Enough To Float Vessel

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 23 Uncle Sam, after starting to seize Johnny Bull's liquor on the steamship Baltic today, halted, scratched his head and later resumed his raid on the steamship locker, stocked with liquor under British government seal, intended for use on the homeward trip.

Collector Elting explained the seizure of the Baltie's liquor had been temporarily halted because it was discovered Dr. E. K. Sprague, chief of the United States public health service, had not certified the amount of liquor to be left for medicinal use. As soon as the certificates was issued. Elting ordered the seizure to proceed. Liquor under seal on the Berengaria will be seized this afternoon as soon as Dr. Sprague has issued his certificate as to the medical requirements, the collector announced, adding that this procedure would be followed with lanta, has been found here after a New York, federal prohibition direcquor under seal.

Captain John Roberts, the Baltics commander, lodged formal protest against breaking of British seals by the American customs officers and the seizure of the ship's liquor.

His protest reads:

"I, J. Roberts, master of the Brit ish steamship Baltic, of Liverpool protest against the breaking of the British customs seals and the seizure by the United States customs authorities of the ship's stores of liquor and wine held under seal on board this ship for consumption exclusively outside the territorial waters of the United States.

NEW YORK, June 23-American Wrightson Looks customs authorities charged with the seizure of liquor brought in by foreign steamships under government seal, for use on their return trip, had their task greatly augmented today when the French liner Paris steamed into quarantine with almost enough liquor in her hold to float her.

Preparing to slip up the North river to join the British liners Baltic and Berengaria, the captain of the Paris said he had under seal the following supplies:

Ordinary wine 8,494 bottles; crew wine 51 barrels, Rhine wine 864 bottles, cognac 193 bottles, whiskey 76 bottles, gin 85 bottles, rum 62 bottles, champagne 671 bottles, 757 half bottles of champagne, beer 266 bottles and 136 barrels, liquors 340 bottles.

Secretary Malone arrived here this morning to board the Majestic for a trip to Europe. He said he did not expect to witness the liquor seizures the county health unit, he will inocuand declined to comment in any way on the situation. Removal of the seized liquor from the Baltic began shortly before two o'clock. The authorities induced long shoremen to lift it with a crane from the hold and it was loaded on trucks bound for a government warehouse. Only a few dozen case had been taken off, however, when the removal was stopped on telephonic instruction from Customs and prohibition officials, up in the air over the last turn in events, said they were waiting Dr. Sprague's arrival before they did anything else.

Damage Done To Many Residences In The Neighborhood

Following the destruction of the Tavern by fire yesterday, there has been considerable speculation as to what use the lot on which it stood and tant Secretary Moss of the treasury left in the ruins, will be put to. It was learned today that there was som likelihood of a Masonic temple being erected on the lot, and ready sale is sure for the bricks and stone.

Many times in the past the Tavern has caught on fire but was saved each time by timely intervention.

In 1902 the Tavern which was destroy ed completely by fire here Friday, was attacked by a destructive fire which all but destroyed that 36 year old structure. It is said by old residents here that the fire originated then near where the fire of Friday started, on the east roof of the hotel. In 1902, the flames were conquered before a total loss came, but much of the damaged part of the hotel was torn away never to be rebuilt, Some time after the 1902 fire, the mammoth servant Moss telephoned Assistant Collector house of the ancient hostelry was re-Mr. and Mrs. E. Had the wind not been quiet allowing the flames to go straight up, had the mad red flames been blown, north, south, east or west, destruction would have followed. As it was fire fighters on the Adams apartments across Grant street, had to wear wet blankets lest the heat burn their clothing from their backs. The same kind of a fight was carried on in the other residences near. Fear was felt for the safety of the large Central Methodist church, which was well removed from the doomed building. According to common report C. E Malone the owner of the Tavern carried only $8,000 insurance on it.

The saddest part of the great burning is the loss it brought to so many families who lived in it. WE FAVOR ACCEPTANCE OF HENRY FORD'S BID FOR MUSCLE SHOALS.

THE SHRINE CONVENTION A FAIR REPRESENTATION OF SOBER AMERICA.

It has taken some time for the efforts of antiprohibitionists to make capital out of the great Shriner's meeting at Washington, to become generally known. In the south especially, little was known until of late of the great newspaper campaign put on by the whiskey crowd to teach the nation that prohibition would be made a back number by the over three hundred thousand Shriners at their recent Washington gathering. So far as local members of the Shrine gathering at Wash-Ington is concerned, Twin City people know that whiskey was not on tap at the national capital when they were visiting the city. In fact more than one of the local men stated on returning that they did not see a drunk man the whole time they were in Washington, and further that they never saw a better behaved crowd of people in all their lives. Local testimony is in sharp disagreement with the claims made before the Shrine convention and is in close agreement with the recent utter ance of the Christian Science Monitor on this subject, which is as follows:

Several hundred thousand Shriners together with their families and friends, have been given an impressive illustration of the extent to which the campaign of falsehood and verification carried on by the liquor interests has been developed at the expense of individual reputations. For a week before the great gathering of this organization at Washington certain papers were filled with stories of the preparations made by the bootleggers to convert the conclave into a gigantic orgy. As the ceremonies progressed the world was told by dispatches in newspapers that are trying to break down the prohibition law, of the delivery of alcoholic liquor in case lots to hotels and Shriners' headquarters. The activities of the bootleggers were described in graphic and as it turns out wholly imaginative terms, and their profits were estimated at only less than those of a moving picture star. The world was asked to believe that gentlemen high in Masonic order would with their families have been in the habit of enjoying a national outing of this sort, were to a man violators of law and victims of dipsomania. The campaign against prohibition assumed the form of a campaign of personal slander against all who wore the red fez.

But with the close of Shriners' week the which had found pleasure or profit in the publication of malignant gossip. It became known that the arrest of drunkenness in Washington during the week, despite the presence there of 350,000 strangers on pleasure bent, were barely 50 per cent of normal. The Shriners' own court, which was established for the purpose of enforcing order, had practically no business, except the benevolent task of looking up lost children. The chief of the District of Columbia police said that there was not the slightest doubt that prohibition was responsible for the general orderliness that prevailed.

A Train Of Thoughts For the Sabbath and Other Days

By J. E. Blair William Shakespear, thought to be the great est poet and writer out side of Holy Writ is credited with saying: "Some are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them."

Mr. Shakespeare could hardly have meant what he seemed to have said. First, because greatness all will agree cannot be "thrust upon" anybody. Greatness cannot come from without. Second, and as for being "born great" nobody on this earth save and except Christ Himself was ever born great. For the sake of convenience, we speak of natural greatness, of "nature's" noblemen" and the like, but nobleness-greatness is of grace not of nature. Third, none have ever achieved greatness any more than they have "lifted themselves by their boot-straps." Greatness Is not achieved—it is a growth, the gift of God. In passing socalled "self made men" are often narrow bigoted and unappreciative. It was said in the "train of thoughts" last week that those who fed on Christ the Bread of Life and who can be inspired by Him" cannot help being great. A broad statement, one that covers a great deal of ground. Is it true? It would be folly to argue the question. The only way is to test the truth of the statement. No better way to come at a fair test, occurs at this time than to say does he Greatest Man inspire you? At twelve years of age Christ was so concerned over great questions that He tarried three days in Jerusalem to ask questions of the best men and the most learned men of His Boyhood days. He told Mary, and his foster father Joseph that He must be about His Father's business. If that kind of thing does not suit, if that kind of food for thought does not taste good to you, the only thing to say, in all truth, is that you have spiritual indigestion. Nay, you are worse off than that, you are living in spiritual death. You need a spiritual operation, which being interpreted means you need to be converted to Christianity, you need to be born again, just as Nicodemus did. It is a fact that none but spiritually born men and women care anything about God's business. from his standpoint. Only such catch inspiration from Christ, only such feed upon upon Him, only such are great. Another idea in closing, it is not wrong to seek God, Just as the chief of police of Washington be- for other motives, than the high motive of being lieved prohibition was the bottom cause of the great. COAL & GRAIN COMPANY

Corner 1st Ave. and Moulton st.

Albany, Ala., June 23, 1923

We, the undersigned property owners, whose property was so seriously threatened by the "Tavern fire," take this method of expresing our sincere thanks to the members of the Louisville & Nashville, Decature and Albany Fire Departments, and all volunteer fire fighters for the spleudid aid rendered to us by you in fighting this fire for the protection of our property, and in practically preventing any considerable damage thereto, We do not believe more prompt, faithful, vigorous, intelligent, and effective service was ever rendered by gentlemen than that rendered by you on this occasion and when you assumed the burden of fighting this fire to prevent its spread to property adjacent to the Tavern. We realize that you were terribly handicapped by a totally inadequate water pressure, and that you fought and prevented the spread of this fire in the face of heat which was next to unbearable, and almost without water, for many times the pressure was so low that it was impossible for you to throw the water but a few feet beyond the end of the hose nozzle, and in fact at times the water failed to flow.

In this connection we feel that we should say that the public owes a duty to the members of the organized fire departments, and to volunteer fire fighters, and to our community as well, and that is to see that the dangerous condition with which property owners were confronted on the occasion of this fire due to low water pressure is remedied. The governing boards of the Cities of Decatur and Albany should at once take vigorous steps to see that the Water company remedies this conditon and if necessary they should invoke the urisdicton that ienlist the aid of the Public Service Commission to this end, for otherwise we are likely in the future to be confronted with grave danger, not only to property but to persons as well, and we are liable to be future penalized by the insurance companies in the form of a higher insurance rate.

The Water Company holds a valuable franchise from the City of Decatur and also from the City of Albany; it claims that each of these franchises are in perpetuity, which, of course, makes them the more valuable, and perhaps makes the Water Company more inconsiderate of the interest of the public. It should be protected in the enjoyment of these franchises so long as it meets its obligations imposed thereunder, and other contractual obligations, which it has heretofore assumed, but when it so completely neglects its duties as it did on the occasion of the fire, it is time for the people take notice, and see that it functions in the manner which not only the public good, but the law requires, and we verily believe that the sovereign power of the State should be sought to oust it of its franchise in each city f it continues to be so inderelict in the discharge of its obligations.

We hardly see how it was possible for you fighting this fire, handicapped as you were, to do what you did, but you did it, and it was but little short of wonderful, and we hereby extend to you and each of you our everlasting thanks and appreciation.

To futher show our appreciation, we have arranged for a banquet for you at the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday night, June 26th, at 7 o'clock. The Banquet Hall in this building will accomodate sixty persons and we have arranged for sixty plates, and we cordially invite you to be present and enjoy this banquet. We do not know the names of all volunteer fire fighters, but we are extending this invitation to you through the press, and we want you to come and enjoy the banquet.
